HELD IN $3,000 BONDS AT WESTERY

John DiFonti, John and Caterino Cisco Acjudged Probably Guilty of Manslaughter—Railroad Denies Responsibility in Kingsland Attachment Case—Sudden Death of William McSweeney—To Hustle Work on Watch Hill Road.

Judge Oliver H. Williams held regular session of the Third district court Friday, at which nearly all the cases on the docket were continued, in order to permit the taking of evidence in the DiFonti and Cisco manslaughter cases, outgrowths of the alleged wood alcohol poisoned whiskey cases. A week ago the state's testimony was presented in the three cases except that of Professor Whitney of Harvard, who made the analyses in connection with the cases, but who was unable to be in court at that time.

Court came in at 9 o'clock and took a recess half an hour afterwards until 11:30, to await the arrival of Attorney General Greenough of Providence and Prof. William E. Whitney of Harvard. The interim there was a partial hearing on a petition brought by Attorney N. W. Smith for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co., asking for dismissal from responsibility in the attachment case against household effects alleged to be the property of A. A. Kingsland. Some weeks ago these goods were taken from the Kingsland place at Weekapaug on a Sunday and taken to the railway station in Westery for shipment to South Norwalk.

Several creditors, including James A. Wallace, George W. Timbury and F. H. Opie company, served writ of attachment for the goods upon Station Agent Tanner, at Westery, but the goods were permitted to go forward a few days afterward. As the goods were trusted into the possession of the railroad company, these creditors seek to recover from that source. Attorney Smith makes claim that the writ of attachment was not properly served, as service was not made upon the treasurer, an officer or director of the railroad company. He therefore asked that the railroad company be discharged for responsibility by alleged defective service of the writ.

The case was continued for one week. When court reconvened at 11:20, the hearing in the case of John DiFonti, charged with manslaughter in selling wood alcohol poisoned whiskey to Michael Riley, continued from Friday of last week, was resumed. The only witness to testify was Professor William F. Whitney of the Harvard Medical school, who analyzed the stomach and brain of Michael Riley. He found wood alcohol in the stomach, and also found some in the brain. He also analyzed the small amount of liquid in the bottle, which also contained wood alcohol. The result of wood alcohol poisoning is a feeling of depression and pain in the breast, stomach, limbs, sometimes dizziness, and sometimes death. The usual fatal dose is from two to six ounces. As to the percentage of alcohol found the bottle the doctor said it was approximately 15 per cent.

He made the examination of the stomach April 30 or three days after it was received. It made immediately after the deceased, examination would have given stronger results. Examination was made for the purpose of ascertaining whether wood alcohol caused the death of Michael Riley, and special search was therefore made for wood alcohol. While he found wood alcohol in the stomach and brain he did not positively determine the exact amount. A person who had previously taken other liquors would be more susceptible to the effects of wood alcohol than otherwise. The only test made in the Riley case was for wood alcohol and therefore he did not ascertain the other ingredients.

without fatal effect, while others might die from like dose.

This concluded the evidence for the state and none was put in for the defense.

By agreement of counsel, Professor Whitney then gave his testimony as to the analysis of the stomach and a portion of the liquid from which Daniel T. Sullivan drank, and for whose death John Cisco and Caterino Cisco are charged with manslaughter.

The analysis was of the same nature as that made in the Riley case. In the stomach Professor Whitney obtained a color reaction that showed at least 5 per cent of alcohol. From the liquor in the bottle, the quantity being very small, the percentage of alcohol was not less than five per cent, but it may have been more.

Attorney General Greenough announced that the state rested. Attorney Sweeney for counsel in both cases offered no testimony. He stated that in the DiFonti case the charge was so grave that it was within the province of the district court, and therefore the only point was whether there was sufficient evidence to warrant holding the accused for trial in the superior court, especially as he had pleaded guilty of maintaining a liquor nuisance.

Judge Sweeney asked for the discharge of John Cisco, as no evidence had been introduced to connect Cisco with the alleged crime, as it was Mr. Cisco and not Mr. Cisco who sold the liquor that it is alleged caused the death of Mr. Sullivan. Attorney General Greenough said that Mr. Cisco was considered a proprietor of the place and should be held jointly with his wife.

Judge Williams found that John DiFonti was probably guilty of manslaughter in causing the death of Michael Riley, and for that trial at the September term of the superior court. DiFonti furnished a bond of $3,000 for his appearance.

John Cisco and Caterino Cisco were also adjudged probably guilty and each furnished bonds of $3,000 for their appearance, at the September term of the superior court.

Rev. Joseph F. Elder, who died in New York recently at the home of his son, John P. Elder, was known in Westery, where he frequently visited, while his son, Rev. Robert Elder, was pastor of Calvary Baptist Church. Another son is Rev. Joseph A. Elder, who is pastor of the Third Baptist church in New London. There was a peculiar accident in the life of Rev. Joseph F. Elder. His mother died when he was very young and he was but two years of age when his father married a widow, who had a daughter 18 months old. These children were brought up under the same parental care, almost as brother and sister, although they bore no relationship to each other. They learned to love each other as children and this continued on through life. The father of the boy, Joseph, the mother of the girl each gave their blessing and the lovers from childhood were married and lived a life of contentment and happiness.

William McSweeney, a paving cutter by occupation, died suddenly Friday noon at the home of his wife, Laura, in the New Granite works. Mr. McSweeney has been in failing health for a number of years and was permitted to work whenever he felt so. Although he was not physically able to work regularly, a few weeks ago he collapsed while working at the Granite works. He was taken home at 135 Granite street, but recovered from that severe attack and resumed his work. He complained of being weak at the waist and back, and at noon died suddenly of heart disease.

Mr. McSweeney was born in Ireland about 48 years ago and had been a resident of Westery nearly forty years. He was a member of Narragansett council, O.K.W., and was a member of the local lodge. He is survived by his wife, McSweeney, a son Timothy, and two daughters, Mary and Alice McSweeney.

An alarm of fire brought the P. S. Barber hose company to a blaze in a tenement over the store of B. G. Richmond in West Broad street. Friday morning, just before 1 o'clock, a kerosene lamp had been left on the window sill of the apartments occupied by Bray Olyffe. Bray was accidentally upset by a little girl and the flames spread to a mattress. Mrs. Brown shouted fire and the alarm was sent in from the nearest fire box. Prompt assistance subdued the blaze before the fire apparatus arrived. There was only slight damage.

The regular meeting of Phebe Greene Ward chapter, D. A. R., was held at the residence of Mrs. Harriet S. Langdon in Avonville. Resolutions of regret were adopted upon the death of Mrs. Charles B. Coon. A committee composed of Mrs. William A. Hildard, Mrs. Milo M. Clark and Mrs. Mary Chapman, was appointed to locate and care for the graves of revolutionary soldiers in Westery and vicinity.

There was a piano solo by Miss Hazel York and reading of poems of Oliver Wendell Holmes by Mrs. John Thomas. The meeting was held with the singing of America. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Langdon.

With representatives from the Norwich and Groton lodges as guests, Hope lodge, No. 19, Rebekah degree, of Westery, entertained these grand officers of Rhode Island: Mrs. Mary A. Franklin, past president; Mrs. George A. Potter, vice president; Mrs. Cora A. Aldrich, secretary; Mrs. Laura H. Staxner, marshal; Mrs. Lillian Rowe, inside guard. The Rebekah degree was conferred upon three candidates, after which there were speeches, refreshments and a general social session.

It is announced by General Manager Sewell that the work of rebuilding the Watch Hill road will be commenced Monday morning with a large force of men and that the work will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible, the contract limit being forty-two days. The work will be started at Watch Hill and completed in that section first, in order that there will be no interference with the plan of improvement of Bay street by the Watch Hill fire district and Watch Hill improvement society.

It is proposed to extend the Pleasant View road three thousand feet toward Weekapaug during the present summer.
